

The Caledonian Mercury.

Edinburgh, Thursday, April 7, 1726.

Conclusion of the Answer of the States General, to the Memorial of Count Coningswick Esqrs, &c.

THAT the 5th Art. of the said Treaty, with Respect to the E. Indies, declares very explicitly, That the Subjects of the K. of Spain, describ'd there by the Name of Spaniards, shall keep their Navigation they then had in the E. Indies, without being allowed to extend it further. That this Clause manifestly excludes the Subjects of the Aust. Netherlands in all Places of the Aust. Netherlands, at that Time Subjects to the K. of Spain, from Navigation in all Places of the E. Indies, which were not then possessed by Spain. That the Explication which seems offered with great Pains, to be put upon the Word Spaniards, as if that Word ought to be taken in a strict and limited Sense, and did not comprehend under it those who are indeed Subjects of Spain, but are not properly denominated Spaniards, appears to their H. Mightinesses to be very incongruous, and destitute of all Foundation: For according to this Way of explaining, the K. of Spain must have granted to those of his Subjects who were totally excluded from the Navigation to the East Indies, a greater Advantage than to the Spaniards, who alone had the Right of enjoying that Navigation: So that it is not to be presumed, with the least Colour of Probability, that this Explication is conformable to what was the Intention either of the Kings of Spain, or of their High Mightinesses, the contracting Parties at the Treaty of Munster; which is sufficiently confirm'd by the constant Usage observed in so long a Course of Years afterward. That they are very sorry to have the Misfortune not to be of the same Opinion with his Imp. and Cath. Majesty, as to the Sense of the said Treaty, and the Right resulting from it. That being entirely posswaded of their Right, and that Right being very essential to the Republick; they think they should do themselves a great Prejudice, if they should consent to the laying it down for the Foundation of the Negotiation about the said Commerce of the Austrian Netherlands to the Indies; That the same ought to subist, particularly after so long a Declaration, made not only by Count Coningswick, but likewise by his Majesty the King of spain, of the Engagement which his Imp. and Cath. Majesty is under with the King of Spain, to maintain jointly the said Commerce in all Things; A Declaration that leaves them no great Hope of Success in such a Negotiation, and which at the same Time begets in them a just Scruple against accepting the Mediation of his Majesty the K. of Spain, on a Point with Respect to which he has enter'd into such strong Engagements; which point, their H. Mightinesses hold to be contrary to the Treaties, according to his Majesty the King of Spain's own Assertion not long ago. To which must be added, that the advantagous Propositions which it was said the Marquis de St. Philippe, Ambassador of Spain, would make after his Arrival, and of which such great Hopes were given to their H. Mightinesses, have amounted only to the proposing of a Negotiation, in such general Terms, that nothing certain can be drawn from them; and to the Offer of his Majesty the King of Spain's Mediation, upon which their H. Mightinesses have so much Reason to be scrupulous.

That besides they cannot avoid observing, That the Inclination express'd on the Part of his Imp. Majesty to a Negotiation, for coming to an Accommodation of the Differences subsisting, is tack'd to a Condition; that is to say, That their H. Mightinesses shall not accede to the Treaty of Munster: That they think themselves obliged to preserve their Freedom entire, to accede to that Treaty, or not to accede to it; That whatever Resolution they may come to upon it, they shall always be in a Condition to treat upon these Differences; when Propositions shall be made to them that are acceptable.

That as to that Treaty, their H. Mightinesses have not the same Notion of it which C. Coningswick seems to have: For, as they have affirmed in their former Answers, they cannot but look upon the said Treaty to be purely defensive, and not tending to the Injury or Offence of any whosoever; That they have been confirmed in this Opinion, by seeing in a Memorial of the M. de St. Philippe, that the K. of Spain himself thinks the Aim of this Treaty is the Preservation of the Peace; and that it is not credible the Princes who concluded it, would disturb the Quiet of Europe.

That lastly, whatever Resolution may be taken with respect to the said Accession, their H. Mighti-nesses will ever preserve for his Imp. and Cath. Majesty, and for his valuable Friendship, the high Esteem they have always had, and the same Desire to live with him in perfect Harmony & Confidence, as also to cultivate a good Understanding between the Subjects on both Sides ; which is never better maintained than by an exact Observation of Treties, and letting them carry the Sense which has constantly been fix'd to them from the Beginning.
And a Copy of the present Resolution of their H. Mightinesses shall, by their Agent Baerbe, put into the Hands of the said C. Coningsbeck-Erps.

From the Post-Man, March ---

In the Conference which was held at Warsaw the 1st of February last, the Bishop of Cracow made the following Speech.

Forasmuch as the Limitation of the Diet does in its own Nature exclude all the Formalities of a publick Council, I shall now offer to the Consideration of this Congress, some Reflections upon the State and Exigency of the present Juncture, not by way of Advice according to the Rules of Law, but only as my private Opinion, without the Appratus of study'd Expressions.

In the first Place, I return Thanks to his Majesty our most gracious Sovereign, for his Care to preserve and maintain the Peace both at home and abroad. In the second Place I thank the most high Prince the Primate, who is more accustomed to do Actions that are Praise-worthy than to court Applause. I likewise Return Thanks to the great Generals of the Army, those most vigilant Guardians of the Cities and the Frontiers of the Country, and of the publick Security. And finally, I thank all those whom the Love of their Country has en-gag'd to repair to this Congress, at the Hazard of their Estates and Health.

When the States of the Republic limited the last Diet, they made a positive Law, by which they referred three Things to his Majesty's Disposal, viz.
The Care of the public Safety, or what is commonly called The Russian Postpolis; the resuming of the Diet, and the renewing the Conferences with the Foreign Ministers. We ought first to consider diligenly of the first and 2d, viz. The Advice and Support of the Republic, and then determine, according to the Consequences Things may be attended with. Therefore when his Sacred Majesty, by the Superiority of his Knowledge, and his Paternal Foresight, and the Council now about him, shall see the Approach of the Danger wherewith he's threatened, (which GOD avert) and know that it is just at Hand, from what Quarter soever it may be; it will then be proper to call the Diet without Delay, and at the same time send the Universalia, or Vici, to put every one upon their Guard: Taking heed in the mean time, that neither such of the Subjects to whom War may be profitable, nor Foreigners, may take occasion from thence to begin the War, upon our first having sounded the Trumpet; and likewise, that the Republic does not suffer Prejudice by the Neglect of these Remedies.

It will moreover be requisite to reinforce the Garrisons of Thorn, Elbing and Posen, to which I exhort the Generals of the Army. The petty Diets in all the Palatinates should also be convok'd at the first Appearance of any Hostility, to supply the Place of Deputies; but if, as I hope by GOD's Grace, all Things continue quiet every where, it will be sufficient to call only the petty Diets which, having broke up without Succes, had no Deputies.

As to the third Affair, viz. the Conferences with the Foreign Ministers: Forasmuch as the reciprocal Pretensions have been sufficiently debated and explained on both Sides, I am of Opinion, 1st, As to the old Disputes with the Court of Rome, about the Right of Patronage of the Abbeys, &c. that this Affair ought to be prosecuted partly by continuing the Conferences and the Negotiations with the most Revd. the Apostolical Nuncio, and partly by the Representations of his Majesty's Ministers residing at Rome, at least to hinder the Prescription till the next Diet, when the Republick may resolve to send an extraordinary Embassy to the great City (Rome) with full Power to treat, and that some of the Points contested being granted, others moderated, and others obtained from the Holy See, an entire Accommodation may follow, not only by the Renewing, but also by an Augmentation of the old Agreement, which having commenced under Leo X. with Respect to the same Pretensions of the Right of Patronage of Bishopricks and other Benefices, have after long Conferences and more fatal Progress subsisted above 200 Years since 1523, between Sigismund I. and Clement VIII. as may be seen by the Acts preserved in the Records, and since printed and published.

To be concluded in our next.

Wye's Letter verbatim, London, April 2.

Since our last arrived a Holland and French Mail.

Letters from the Hague advise, that the Spanish Ambassador presented on the 1st Inst. a 2d Memorial to the States, representing, among other Things, That the King his Master believes he made use of his lawful Right, when after the Treaty of Vienna, his Majesty granted some Privileges and Easements to the Subjects of the Emperor, with whom he is a strict Ally.

'Tis very strange his Catholick Majesty should still entertain such an Opinion, after so many Memorials presented to him on the Part of the States General, and which do fully and clearly demonstrate he has no such Right. But notwithstanding (if we may credit what they write from Vienna) his Catholick Majesty has offered his Fleet to the Emperor, to be made use of jointly with that which (as they pretend) the King of Portugal designs to set out against the Potentates who shall disturb the Ostend Company in its Commerce. This is very opposite to the Accounts given, of the King of Portugal offering his Mediation between the Emperor and the States General.

As to what has been so often mentioned, of the Accession of the Swedes to the Treaty of Hanover; the Advices from thence now relate, That in the last Assembly of the Senate, (the King present) one of the eldest of the Senators urged the Necessity of taking a wholesome Resolution, in contenting themselves with a bare Neutrality. Mean-time they go on with their great Preparations by Sea, and 'tis feared they are too much influenced by certain Powers, who are for making us subservient to their Ambition.

But there are private Letters from Vienna and Madrid by last Mail, which mention, that those two Courts are so much alarmed at the early and formidable Preparations by Sea in England, that it was believed they would, from a Consideration of their own Interest and Circumstances, drop their Pretensions, not being able to support them.

We hear the following Ships are put in Commission; Stirling-castle, Berwick, Kent, Royal-Oak, Burford, Lenox, York, and Canterbury, all 70 Gun Ships except the two latter.

Yesterday the Commons, in a Committee, after another long Debate, went thro' the Bill for better securing the Moneys and Effects of the Suitors of the Court of Chancery. The Debate was about appointing a proper Person to take an Account of the Suitors Money depositate in the Bank, in the Nature of a Check in the Bank; and particularly whether his Place should be for Life or during Pleasure; at last the Committee divided, and carried it for the latter, Yeas 39, Noes 37. This Officer is to be appointed by the Lord Chancellor for the Time being.

We hear that Sir Richard Groves-Vanier, who lives at Peterburrow house near the Horse Ferry, Westminster, offers to build the Bridge at his own Expence, in case Leave be given to build it at Westminster, in which Neighbourhood Sir Richard has a very considerable Estate, and which doubtless will be much improved by building the Bridge there.

This Day the Lords heard the remaining Part of the Cause between Sir John Schaw and the Lady Houston; and the Interlocutors of the Lords of Session in Scotland were Affirmed.

Last Night the Number of the Polls stood thus: Alderman Thomson 1389, Alderman Brocas 901. 'Tis given out the Majority of the former was obtained not only by the great Numbers brought from Merchant Taylors, and Stationers Hall, but by a great Troop, he added by a Noble Lord and a Knight from Westminster; but there's an Act of Parliament lately passed for preserving the Freedoms of of Elections of this City, the Pole to Night stood thus: Alderman Thomson 1896, Alderman Brocas 1234, but the Pole is to be continued on Monday.

Brussels, April 4. There is a Talk of holding a new Congress, to strengthen the Tranquillity of Europe.

Edinburgh, April 7. Died lately, and Yesterday was buried in the Gray Friars Church-yard, Michael Kincaid, Esq; formerly Usher to Mr. George of Denmark, much regretted by all who knew him.
